When I was invited to join this program, I didn't know too much about Mindvalley, but I thought that it would be beneficial for me. And it really was. The short video system allowed me to have consistency in attending the different courses.

Each speaker gave me different and meaningful concepts and ideas, or sometimes, I could identify how each author had a different approach for the same matter.

And every day was a chance for applying what we have learnt.

So, I hope that this program starts again next year with a new group, helping in the development of our talented people.

I want to send a big THANK YOU for gave me this valuable opportunity.

Now I have more tools to continue shaping my best version".

“If we want to become good leaders, we need to start by changing ourselves, and I believe Mindvalley is a great way to embark on this self-discovery and transformational journey, with everything this entails.

Thanks to the quests and episodes of the program, I incorporated new techniques and resources that are helping me in my daily life, both on a personal and professional level”.

“When trying to think of a single word to describe my experience with Mindvalley, I inevitably conclude that the word is "blessing”.

This past year has been particularly challenging, given some professional changes that allowed me the pleasure to lead more people than I was used to. Mindvalley has been the perfect psychological and emotional support all along the way. It has provided me with all the resources, tactics, and application guidance I needed to ease my mind and take the proper time to listen to my team, learn about them in a deep way that could help me get the leaders within them.

Going through the quests has provided me with an irrevocable amount of opportunity, exposure, and increased knowledge on how to situate myself in leadership, both form a personal and a professional approach.

Introspection has been a natural result form the words of the speakers I heard, and with introspection comes change, learning, and positive thinking. I'm happy I've been given the opportunity to access such wonderful mentors”.
